++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Bright start, rain edging northeast this afternoon. Freshening southerly winds.

Today:
A bright morning with occasional showers but cloud increasing bringing more persistent rain to Galloway towards midday. The more persistent rain edges northeast through the afternoon, although the east coast may remain dry, the rain becoming heavy across the hills. Maximum temperature 13 deg C (55 deg F).

Tonight:
Cloudy evening with persistent, occasionally heavy rain, the rain becoming lighter and patchier from the west around midnight. Clear spells and perhaps a few showers developing through the early hours. Minimum temperature 2 deg C (36 deg F).

Monday:
A bright day for most with sunny spells and a few showers, although the Lothians look cloudier with patchy rain. These cloudier conditions edge south later in the afternoon. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Sunny spells and showers Tuesday and Wednesday, some longer spells of rain in east, best of the sun in west, with easing northerly winds. Thursday dry with sunny spells.
